Day History Workshop

Slated Today At UT

The University of Tampa today will host a one-day history workshop for student historians from Florida colleges and universities under the sponsorship of UT's international history society, Phi Alpha Theta.

Registration begins this morning at 9 a.m. in UT's University Union, the site of the day's activities. Talks and paper presentations are scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon, and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

SPEAKER FOR the noon luncheon will be Dr. James W. Silver, professor of history at the University of South Florida, and a specialist on Southern history. He will speak on "History as Pursuit."

Other papers presented will be "Russian Orthodoxy Today," by Patricia Allen, Stetson University; "The Roots of Justinian's Gothic War" by Richard Stewart, Stetson; "Great Newton" by Marilyn Harris, Jacksonville University; "The Writing of Aviation History: A Status Report," by Aurora Davis, University of Miami; "The Last Gasp of Massive Resistance — The Law and Social Change in Manatee County, Florida, 1954-1971" by Raymond Rapp, USF; "The Labor Movement and the Problem of Anti-Black Discrimination" by Carol Gagnon, Florida Atlantic University; and "Lenin's Political Theory" by Andrew Irzyk, University of Tampa.

Peter Scaglione, UT's Phi Alpha Theta publicity chairman, said fee for the workshop is $2.50, the cost of the luncheon. The presentations represent original research.
